FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Marketplace Books Launches “Face to Face” Series

Marketplace Books, a world-renowned publisher of books and electronic products, announced today the launch of its “Face to Face” Series—a collection of books capturing the core content and personal feel of America's foremost presenters on a wide range of important trading topics.

The series highlights valuable insights that were once attainable only in lectures and personal discourse. Written in accordance with the speaker's style, the books emphasize important research from such trading giants as Oscar Velez, Sheldon Natenberg, Mark Larsen, John Murphy, and Deron Wagner.

John Probst, Marketplace Books' Senior Editor and Project Lead for the series, says, “Face to Face offers a sense of hearing an expert speak directly to you—no distractions, no complicated sidetracks. You get the real message, straight and simple, as though you were sitting face to face with an expert in your own living room.”

Realizing that readers are coming from different stages in their trading careers, Marketplace Books has taken their unique concept a step further by including content support—the books provide answers to questions that readers may not feel comfortable asking in a lecture setting. Elements such as “Key Terms” and “For Further Thought” are highlighted to ensure that the “Face to Face” series is an excellent tool for making huge topics manageable and, most of all, applicable to profit goals.

Based in Columbia, Maryland, Marketplace Books has been serving the needs of investors, financial advisors, and professional traders since 1995, often partnering with key industry players in the investment world.
